Introduction

The Pied Piper stopped at Brookline High
On the way back to Hamlin, just passing by,
"I have a secret charm," said he,
"To draw all creatures after me.
I've come to Brookline to see the school,
To visit the clubs, the faculty,
And play each one a melody."

BROOKLINE MASS.

Miss Elizabeth P. Shaw

Dedication

Charm is an innate quality expressing itself in kindness, thoughtfulness and interest in other people. A woman with charm has a quiet graciousness of thought and action, and a seriousness of purpose. She gives of herself untiringly with pleasure and satisfaction. Her voice has warmth and gentleness when she speaks, and her attention is keen and interested when she listens to the words of others. These qualities make her a fine teacher and a good friend.

This year we are dedicating our yearbook to a teacher who we feel possesses the quality of charm. She has been faculty adviser to the MURIVIAN for three years, has contributed to the growth of Packard House as one of its homeroom teachers, and is now Assistant Housemaster of Lincoln House. With her warm personality she has won the hearts of all who are associated with her.

Because she adds a charm to all she touches, we dedicate this book to Miss Elizabeth P. Shaw.

Murivian Editorial Staff

Attracted to room 231 by the noise issuing forth, the Piper saw Rolf Kates, Mr. Coe and Dotty Wolfers conferring. Ruthy Cohen, surrounded by Apprentices, was ruling lines and pasting. Mildly cursing people who included such things as emptying wastebaskets in their statistics was Bev Godin. Martha Stern and Toby Koritz sat trying to remember faces as well as names, as Claire Edwards wildly sought inspiration. Paulee Perry and Pearl Barkin worked on a poster. Janey Cohen and Ronnie Kaplan were sorting pictures for Cynthia Siegel's display, while posing for an "unposed" shot by Dave Gorfinkle. To the clamor of seniors seeking to discover the "Who's Who," was added the racket of Glad Breger's typing. The Piper thought it better not to invade this bedlam.

Murivian Business Staff

Ever wonder who the people were who so willingly took a dollar from you every so often during the school year? The Murivian Business Staff wanted no one to be left out when the Murivians were distributed in June. The Pied Piper was the first to pay his dollar when approached by a Junior Apprentice. (He was the first to be considered before the Murivian was written.) After the Piper almost 1400 others bought Murivians. The number of subscribers enabled the Business Staff to keep the price comparatively low. Dividing into two groups, they analyzed the duties of each member of the staff, increasing efficiency, and planned a drive for 100% sales. From September to June, their efforts never lagged.

As the Pied Piper said, "The Murivian is the best yearbook for the price this side of Hamlin."

School Committee

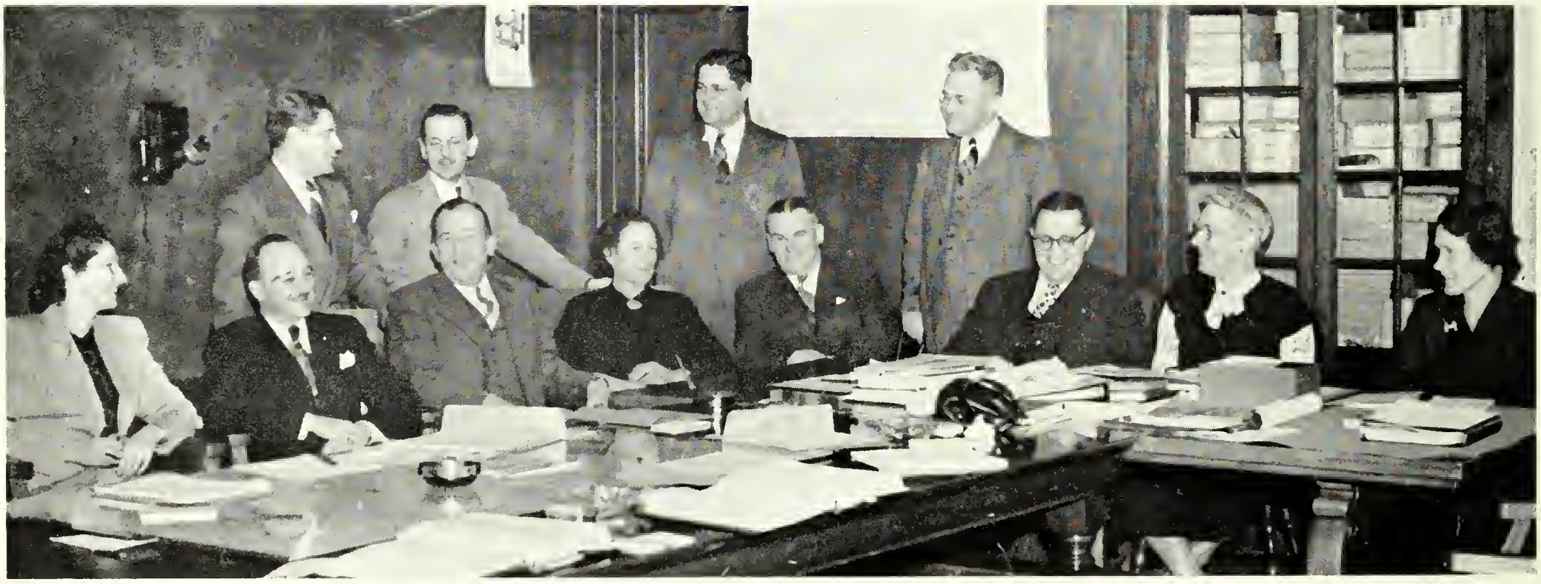
Mr. Caverly

You have attempted through the years to give to the faculty and students of Brookline High School an opportunity for the best in education, sports, and extra curricular activities. As a result of these efforts, we attend one of the finest schools.

Last year, you approved the plans for the building of the New North Wing. In this beautiful, modern building, there will be laboratories and greenhouses, club rooms and kitchens, and gymnasiums with all modern conveniences.

With this new wing, many phases of school life will be carried on at the school itself. Various social activities and intra-mural sports will be held at the high school instead of the halls and fields of the grammar schools.

We, of Brookline High School, want to extend our appreciation for your wonderful work in creating and developing our fine opportunities.



SEATED: Mrs. Burack, Dr. Seltzer, Mr. Brown (Chairman), Mrs. Pinanski, Dr. Kendrick, Dr. Hennessey, Mrs. Peabody, Miss O'Brien (Secretary).
STANDING: Mrs. Silvano, Mr. Burr, Dr. Souder (Ass't Superintendent), Mr. Caverly (Superintendent).

FACULTY

Dr. Robert G. Andree

Headmaster

It is with a deep sense of pride that we of this years graduating class salute you. We have had the unique distinction of being the first class to have had the benefit of four years under your wise and able leadership. Your accomplishments and vision are an inspiration to the entire student body of B.H.S.

The members of the class of nineteen hundred and fifty extend to you, Dr. Andree, their sincere appreciation for your genuine friendship and guidance during these years.

Message To Miss Sawyer

Your office hummed with activity, as did every place that you were near. The Girls' League under your able leadership budded and bloomed, for you had a green thumb no matter what you did. As freshmen we, unaccustomed to this school, needed help. With your aid and advice, we grew more independent, but your aid was ever renewed.

Message to Mr. Woodman

You gave us the solutions to our questions, although you never answered them. Instead, you helped us to answer them ourselves, a far better method. Nor were the problems you untangled concerned only with future plans. For your cheering smile, your reassuring words, your invaluable assistance and friendship, we thank you.

Art, Speech, and Music Department

Genius was not required to dabble in oils, to appreciate the works of Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms, or to express oneself in conversation distinctly and comfortably.

Instead, students seeking this invaluable background, the Art, Speech, and Music Departments, under the leadership of Miss Parker, Mr. Zanzig, Miss Folsom, and Mrs. Greenberg, offered the experience of developing their own talents and abilities, intelligently appreciating gifts of others, and learning to convey their feelings through art, speech and music.

SEATED: Miss Horn, Mrs. Woodberry, Miss Folsom, Mrs. Greenberg.
STANDING: Mr. Joslin, Mrs. Jarratt, Mr. Corley.

ROW 1: Miss Berriman, Mrs. Edelhoch, Miss Maguire, Mr. Ehnes, (Head of Dept.), Miss Poland, Mrs. Langlois.
ROW 2: Miss Hamblin, Mr. Wall, Mr. Roderick. Mr. Dunbar, Miss Greenshields.

Commercial Department

Commerce is the pulse that beats through all of America's living body. Students whose training will provide a strong beat in the nation's pulse must be prepared for places in the business world.

In typing and stenography, bookkeeping and filing, billing and clerical work, this end was achieved by the Commercial Department.

This phase of vocational training not only assured its students of an occupation but also equipped them with knowledge of the bearing of business functions upon the world and civilization.

English Department

Beginning with the taboos of "ain't" and the complexities of grammar, and culminating in the scholarly study of Shakespeare, the teachers of this department developed in students a familiarity with our language and literature. A course in creative writing, for the first time included in the curriculum, proved so successful that it will be continued and will probably include more advanced work. This course and that in journalistic English have become established electives under Miss Spaulding's progressive direction.

Guidance, Homemaking and Library Departments

Wrapped up in one package are three of Brookline High School's most important functions.

Mr. Woodman's guidance has contributed to helping each student decide on the right post-high school plans for himself, as an individual, considering his preferences, abilities, and finances.

Miss Cronan's Homemaking Department prepared Brookline's girls for future careers as thrifty and efficient housewives.

The library, domain of Miss Phillips, has broadened the scope of its users through its wealth of literature.

Industrial Arts Department

Woodturning, printing, automobile repairing, woodworking, mechanical drawing, radio repairing, machine shop practice, carpentry, metallurgy, and repairing electrical appliances were only a few of the many subjects taught by well-trained members of this department.

To prepare young men for positions in industry, to teach them trades by which to earn livings, these were the aims and the achievements of the Industrial Arts Department. Brookline High School was proud to help fill the ever-increasing need for tradesmen.

SEATED: Mr. Bowler, Mr. Woodlocke, Mr. Edmonds (Head of Dept.), Mr. Beauchemin, Mr. McCabe.
STANDING: Mr. W. Driscoll, Mr. MacMillan, Mr. Ford, Mr. E. Driscoll.

Latin Department

Caesar's campaigns, Cicero's orations, and Virgil's Aeneid live as works to be read and analyzed by the classical scholars of B.H.S. These students gain better comprehension of the derivation of their own and foreign languages.

In addition to the Latin readings, background material on Roman culture and life enriched the curriculum of this department, so that it presented not only the mechanical workings of the language, but also that era's contributions to our civilization.

Mathematics Department

Equational puzzles, geometric perplexities, functional relationships, and everyday math problems constituted the paths of learning through which the members of this department led young mathematicians of B.H.S. These teachers prepared students for college, employment and future citizenship based on logical thinking, the result of mathematical training. From 311, amid abstract geometric murals, Mr. Ward directed this department and also mathematics departments in all the grammar schools.

Modern Languages Department

Grammatical constructions, vocabulary usage, and verbal fluency in French, German, and Spanish were phases of modern language pursued in the classrooms of this department. Supplementary topics of geography and history of each country were included in the study along with the cultures and habits of the people.

Joining the language faculty this year were Miss Doe and Mr. Maidana. Directed by Miss O'Brien, this department served as a highway of understanding between the youth of America and Europe, by building a common bridge, language.

SEATED: Miss Douglas, Miss Placido, Miss O'Brien (Head of Dept.), Miss Chamberlain, Miss Holbrook.
STANDING: Dr. Shepard, Mr. Friedland, Miss Doe, Mr. Mather, Mr. Maidana.

Physical Education Department

Body and Soul . . . Our admiration for this quintette, who helped develop each student's Body and Soul, has no bounds. Co-ordination exercises, apparatus work, and sports were a part of the athletic program. Mr. Hines and his energetic co-workers awaited the time when classes would be held in the new gym and the necessary equipment, including folding partitions to form bleacher seats for gamewatchers, locker rooms, and shower and drying rooms for visiting teams, would be obtained.

Mrs. Brusko, Mr. Bemis, Mr. Hines, Mr. Ball, Miss Kelley.

Science Department

The Last Rose of Summer . . . The North Wing will provide not only a green house, where the Last Rose of Summer will last all winter, but also room for skeletons, flasks, and geiger counters used by these teachers of general science and its basic branches. Films, lectures, experiments and observations promoted scientific interest evidenced by student participation in the science clubs and the Science Fair. Mr. Hollingworth incorporated his knowledge and experience on a series of four science textbooks.

Social Studies Department

For the socially minded students in quest of economic, geographic, governmental, and historic foundations on which to build an active citizenship in their community, the social studies department has given a firm basis for the appreciation and use of approaching privileges of this citizenship.

A progressive department head, Miss Bliss, had devised a new course called "Problems of Democracy," which will be given to seniors and which will supplement the understanding of our own republic with its shortcomings as well as its benefits.

SEATED: Miss Weeden, Miss Lewis, Miss Bliss, Miss McCabe, Mrs. Hartley.
STANDING: Mr. Coe, Mr. Merrill, Mr. Tracy, Mr. Rodeheaver, Mr. Smith.

Administrative Department

Hats off to the friendly efficient group of secretaries at Brookline High School without whose unsparing efforts our school could never have run with the order and harmony which we have enjoyed.

Aside from their office duties, they have willingly rendered extra courtesies and services to the students and faculty with unlimited patience and tact.

They have not only aided in the administration of the school, but set a worthy example of attitude for the student body to do not only the required but a little more.

Alpha Pi

The golden key to success. What does that symbolize to you? Here in the high school, the golden key is the symbol of Alpha Pi, the honorary society. Those who wear this key wear it proudly, for they know that it connotes excellence and leadership.

Admission to the society is determined by a well-balanced number of credits, which one must have gained in extra-curricular activities and in scholastic achievements. After all the points had been tallied correctly and bore the Perkins' seal of approval, an assembly was held for the initiation of the newly accepted members. This occasion was a serious yet happy one, for the inner glow of satisfaction which lit up the face of each person on the stage made us realize that to be in Alpha Pi is a shining symbol of success.

ALPHA PIES

Student Government

The School Council

The Piper's playing of Someone to Watch Over Me reminded us of the School Council. This small student organization served as a link between the Marshal Force and the Court of Justice. Under the leadership of Wayne Mills, the School Council's object was "to regulate the activities and affairs of the Brookline High School as provided in the charter granted to the School Council".

Elected from the student body directly, the Council had under its authority not only the Marshal Force and Court of Justice, but also the individual house councils, and was responsible for all intra-house activities. Members in the Council included the house presidents, Captain of Marshals, and the Chief Justice. There were three faculty advisers whose terms were arranged so that the council always had the advice of at least two faculty members who were familiar with its work.

As a part of the council, there was an executive committee which consisted of the officers of the council and a representative to the committee, Bob Frank.

Since nearly all Council meetings were open to the school at large, each student had the chance to learn the workings of what was one of Brookline High School's examples of true democracy at work.

The Court of Justice

As the Pied Piper of Hamlin came closer, he heard the woeful singing of Don't Fence Me In and realized that he must be approaching a meeting of the Court of Justice, the judicial branch of B. H. S. student government. As he rounded the corner, he saw Robert Frank, acting as Chief Justice, with Tom Day, as Associate Justice. After some questioning, the Pied Piper found out from Mr. Keene, the faculty adviser, that this organization assists the marshals in establishing and maintaining respect for the laws of the school in order that good citizenship may be developed. He also learned from Nancy Ball, Michael Dukakis, Beryl Cohen, Shirley Mann, Edward Robinson, and Raisa Kemler, the other members, that the Court of Justice provides student judgment and imposes punishment in cases of student misbehavior. The accused is given a fair trial and the decision of the court is final and is questioned neither by the defendent nor by any other member of the school. The defendent may select as the counsel for his defense a student from the panel provided by the Court or a person of his own choosing. By giving impartial trials to offenders, this organization upholds the ideals and standards of true democracy and encourages good spirit and citizenship throughout the school.

Marshal Force

As the Piper strolled through the corridors, he whistled to himself, completely unaware of all that was going on about. Suddenly, the long arm of the law reached out and held him with a strong grip.

"Please walk around me, not in front of me! " said the boy to whom the arm belonged.

"I beg your pardon, but I didn't notice you. Do you always stand here?"

"During the five minutes in which classes change, I stand here to keep the passing in the corridors orderly and to keep traffic moving."

"What about the other parts of the building? Who directs traffic there?"

"There are marshals stationed in strategic places in all corridors working under the supervision of the three floor captains. In addition to these, other marshals have posts in the lunchroom where they supervise conduct, making sure that dishes and such are returned to their proper places, that the tables are left clean, and that the stools are pushed in.

"Last May, each Freshman homeroom elected two marshals; each Sophomore homeroom and each Junior homeroom, three. Then Marshals at large were elected. The marshals assumed their duties immediately after their elections."

"How does one know who's a Marshall and who isn't?"

"This blue armband with a red " M " on it is the symbol of the Marshal Force, whose job it is to enforce the laws set up by the School Council."

Aero Club

Z-o-o-o-m-m-m! A new jet construction knocked the Pied Piper to his knees. Luckily the plane was not full size but rather a model constructed by a member of the Aero Club, who rushed into the hall to retrieve the stray plane. Helping the Piper up, he invited him to peek at the model planes of all sizes and makes being constructed by the avid aviators. After a few minutes, the model-makers closed up shop, preparing to go to Logan International Airport, where a flight awaited them. They had difficulty persuading the Piper, who had memories of previous airsickness, to accompany them, but he finally agreed, and they set off together. The plane ride so thrilled the Piper that he left the airport with plans for establishing an aero club in Hamlin.

Art Club

The Pied Piper of Hamlin played several selections at the Art Club meeting. Deep Purple, Lady in Red, and Blue Skies were included, but I'm Always Chasing Rainbows was by far the most appropriate; for, as he played, the Art Club members were busy chasing rainbows around their water colors. Miraculously, in the end the correct colors were in the proper and most effective places.

During other meetings, the members enjoyed such mediums of expressions as are not able to be included in art classes: paper mache, charcoal, and finger paints. Those who did not take art courses had an opportunity to work under an art teacher. Distinguished speakers and trips to studios broadened their ideas on art.

Band

Seventy-seven band members marched across the field on Class Day under the direction of Mr. Corley, faculty adviser, Bob Frank, student leader, and the four section leaders. Each player was in perfect tune; each was in step with the others. This perfection in formation marching and in playing had been achieved only after much work.

Although playing in the band was an extra-curricular activity, participants were required to attend regular band classes in school hours, during which periods the band had extra practice in both marching and playing. Because of its excellent performances at football and hockey games, the band was invited to play at several college football games in Boston. With all these opportunities for practice and performance, the band members achieved a high degree of proficiency, distinguishing itself in the state and New England Music Festivals.

Bank Staff

Arriving in school early one Tuesday morning, the Piper noticed several girls scampering through the corridors carrying charts, envelopes, and other assorted items. He followed one of the girls into a homeroom where one student was surrounded by a mob of his classmates. After collecting the money banked from this poor crazed bank teller, who was attempting to make a quarter, a dime, and four pennies add up to forty cents, the messenger, followed by the Piper, returned to the Bank of B.H.S., where efficient student clerks counted and recorded the amounts banked. Mr. Roderick, in answer to the Piper's question, explained that this savings system was a means of establishing the habit of systematic savings, so necessary in future life. To quote Mr. Roderick, "Funny, funny, funny, what money can do!"

Biology Club

The Pied Piper of Hamlin became very tired from his long journey from Hamlin to Brookline and he lay down to rest near the Muddy River. He was suddenly awakened from a deep sleep by the shouts and cries of boys and girls, calling back and forth to one another, loudly exclaiming over newly discovered flora and fauna. The Pied Piper jumped to his feet, calling angrily to the group. They hastened to explain to him that they were on one of the many field trips taken by the Biology Club in the course of a year.

"We are trying to gather material to exhibit at the Science Fair, where members of the Physics, Chemistry and Biology Clubs display projects which relate to their interests."

"The purpose of the Biology Club is to further the members' knowledge of biology, especially from the point of view of natural history."

"We use the equipment in the Brookline High School laboratory and gain information through trips in the out-of-doors."

"Trips to hospitals, clinics and other places of scientific interest add to our knowledge."

"We're proud of being one of the most active organizations in the high school."

After all this information had been volunteered, the members of the Biology Club wandered off to continue their search. After they had left, the Pied Piper of Hamlin settled back beside the Muddy River to continue his nap. He could hear the sound of the gurgling water as he dreamed. It seemed so near . . . so near . . . so very near . . . SPLASH!

"It was nearer than I thought."

"Ready for your picture?" said an assistant at the Beck Studio to the Piper, who had come to be photographed. "Wet lips, turn your head left! Smile, but no teeth! Lower your right shoulder!" Click! # Central Treasury

Without doubt, the members of the Central Treasury knew more about and had more concern in more student activities than any other group of people in the school, for it was they who tucked away safely in cubbyholes the financial records of every school organization. They also supervised all financial transactions.

Let us take the case of Molly X, student treasurer, a novice who knew not the difference between a debit and a credit. Her big mistake was to accept the advice of the Piper; but enter a Central Treasury member, who straightened out the books and the bookkeeper.

Like Hamilton, the C. T. girls have a five-point financial program: 1) Keep the students happy, 2) Keep the teachers happy, 3) Keep Mr. Ehnes happy, 4) Leave school before 4:00 P.M., 5) Maintain sanity.

Chemistry Club

Accompanied by the Piper, Chemistry Club members tripped to the Bell Telephone Building, General Motors, and the Boston Museum of Science in an attempt to better understand the place of science and especially chemistry in our world today. Science in industry is of special interest to Chem Club members, many of whom will hold chemical jobs in the future.

Members who had entries in the chemistry division of the Science Fair presented talks explaining their exhibits to the club. Each of these entrants placed high in the judging.

Movies, including one on crystal formations, aided students understanding of chemistry's various aspects.

The Piper left members in the laboratory concocting dibromoxymercurofluorescein - sodium, which as every genius knows, is mercurochrome.

Chess Club

Six eyes gazed unmoving at a piece of cardboard in the middle of the table. Outside, on that Friday afternoon, the cheer leaders were practicing loudly; but, inside were only the Piper and the chess players, including David Margolis and Hovey Tyndall.

"No, not that one!" the Piper interrupted. He need not have tried to show these boys how to play; for David, who played the highest board, and Hovey, who played the next highest, had been chosen president and secretary-treasurer of the Chess Club respectively. Chess Club players competed with other schools during the fall and winter seasons as members of the Interscholastic Chess League, and the Greater Boston I. C. L. Championship placque rested this past year at B. H. S. for the fourth time in nine years.

CHECK MATE

Choral Society

As we accompanied the Pied Piper through the halls after school, we were met by strains of a beautiful melody. Stopping to investigate, we found that these celestial sounds were issuing from the Music Room, where some fifty girls were singing together in harmony.

Ruthy Pearlstein explained to the Pied Piper, while the others practiced, that any girl who was willing and able to learn to sing in a group had the opportunity of becoming a member of the Choral Society and attending the weekly meetings and song sessions, at which members learned selections to be presented at various school programs. They practiced diligently to prevent the occurrence of any sour notes at the Christmas Assembly, when they provided the music from the balcony.

The members of the Choral Society gained such proficiency from practicing singing in a group that Brookline High School musicals included many Choral Society members in the cast. They regarded singing each week as relaxation and enjoyment, and their efforts were rewarded by pleasure in performing well at programs.

Mrs. Jarrett advised the society as well as all other B. H. S. vocal groups. In addition to working with her classes and with Packard House in preparation for graduation, she directed the collaboration between B. H. S. students and a professional vocalist on Ballad for Americans.

When the Pied Piper was finished talking with Ruth, the members suggested that the Pied Piper entertain the group by playing With a Song in My Heart, a fitting tribute to members of the Brookline High School Choral Society.

Debating Society

Resolved: The President of the United States should be elected by the direct vote. Taking the affirmative against Boston Latin School and against Waltham High and the negative against Huntington Preparatory, the B. H. S. Debating Society won, these three debates, losing only to Brown and Nichols, who took the negative.

Should the United States recognize the Chinese people's republic? Roxbury Latin School won over B. H. S. debators, who took the negative. Other debates on this subject were held with Philip's Andover and Milton Academies.

Since the forty-five members of the Debating Society did research for each debate in which they participated, they strengthened their knowledge not only of debating, but of politics and government.

Dramatic Society

The Pied Piper noticed long lines of people in front of a cage-like contrivance. He found that they were rushing to buy tickets for the Dramatic Society production, I Remember Mama, by John Van Druten, starring Ruth Pearlstein, Marilyn Kaplan and Walter Ulin. Those selling tickets were members of the Ticket Committee, whose efforts, with those of the Publicity, Program and Usher Committees, were indispensable. Besides these and the actors was the Stage Staff, ambitious jacks-of-all-trades who made much of the scenery and props used in plays.

At monthly meetings, members gained better understanding of the theatre arts by discussion and by hearing members of Boston shows. The Bishop Lee School Players presented selections at a meeting to acquaint the Society with the local dramatic school. For variety, the Society showed the film The Corsican Brothers.

F. H. A.

As the Pied Piper walked along the corridor piping softly, he sniffed a delicious fragrance. He followed his nose to the meeting of the Future Homemakers of America, where trays of tantalizing cookies were cooling on a table. As he began to sample one, he was stopped by a voice from the rear, explaining that the cookies were to be distributed through hospitals for Christmas. F. H. A. activities include also adopting a needy family at Christmas to make their holiday more enjoyable. All efforts aim at fostering in the members the development of creative life and providing wholesome individual and group activity. A benefit to every girl, the F. H. A. promotes a growing appreciation of the joys and satisfaction of homemaking.

French Club

Seventy-five jeunes gens of the French Club marched along in the Pied Piper's procession to the tune of Darling, Je Vous Aime Beaucoup. They had good reason to be attracted by this melody, for who would not "aime beaucoup" a club that offers so much to its members. Each student had to possess a good knowledge of French to be admitted to its ranks, since all conversation at meetings was carried on in French, except when a member exclaimed in English, "Gee, what is that word? I mean Quel est ce-mot?"

Students had a chance to converse in French and to learn more about French culture and customs from taking part in songs, plays, and games. Mademoiselle Anne Bernstein, playing her guitar, and the "Rossignols", a group of singers, led all musical programs. Their slogan "bon esprit" was well chosen.

German Club

We, as citizens of the world, must learn tolerance of our fellow citizens through learning their languages, customs, and heritages of culture. Since Germany, a major nation, has always been a great contributor in science, music, and such, knowledge of Germany is valuable if not necessary for the broadminded world-citizen.

German Club members attempted to achieve their goal of increasing their knowledge and understanding of language, life, tradition and civilization of Germany in various ways.

In addition to discussing pertinent subjects, viewing films, and hearing lectures, the club held a Christmas party. Though at Sudbury they visited a German coffee shoppe, at Riverside Park they feasted on American hot dogs.

Girls' League

"Let's Take an Old-Fashioned Walk or trip to places of interest," Raisa Kemler said. Following her suggestion, the League added "trip days" to the activities in which nine hundred participated.

The June Eighth Grade Party and the September Freshman Acquaintance Parties began League attempts to make each girl's high school career more enjoyable and successful. Freshmen found Senior and Junior Advisers, led by Rosemary Parkins, waiting to aid them. Edith Starr and the Lost and Found Committee helped locate stray pens. Working in the Christmas Workshop, under Barbara Hirshberg and Esther Shulman, co-chairmen of the Service Committee, proved to the new members the importance of service. The Homeroom Chairmen, under Ann Breadon, reached every girl. With the February Supper Party, the G. L. said goodbye to Seniors and looked toward incoming Freshmen.

Jazz Society

The Brookline High School Jazz Society of Brookline (we quote the charter), attempting to dispell any misconceptions pertaining to jazz, presented a series of student lectures, accompanied by records, on the following topics: The Origin of Jazz; The Development of Jazz in New Orleans; The Development of Chicago Jazz; Kansas City Jazz, the Swing Era and Jump; The Evolution of Blues from the Spanish-American War to Date; The Fusion of Blues and Jump with the Resulting Boogie Woogie Style; The Metamorphosis of Jump and Blues to Bee-Bop; and the Musical Structure and the Emotional Nature of Bee-Bop.

Members of the society attended a jazz concert at B. U., featuring Nat Pierce, the Crimson Stompers, Frankie Newton, Al Morgan, Charlie Mariano, and the Edmond Hall All-Stars.

Library Aides

"Where are you, now that I need you?" cried the students who had wandered into the library to look up obscure facts or persons, or books of their choices.

One of the Library Aides, who number fifty-odd, came from behind the library desk, where Aides are stationed from 8:00 A.M. to 3:00 P.M. every school day to help in the work of running so large a library as ours.

"May I help you?" queried the Aide of him who seemed most in need of aid, the Pied Piper. Within a few minutes, she had found the book he sought, stamped it, explained the layout of the library so that he would be able to find a book himself next time, offered him the book reviews which the Aides had mimeographed, and turned to arranging a display.

SHAKESPEARE

No refreshments but no dues either. Also, this unusual club gave no Alpha Pi credit and, as a result, was composed only of those thoroughly interested in creative writing or literature. The fifty members with literary goals divided into two groups to allow concentration: the Readers, who studied and discussed the literature of varied countries and periods; and the Writers, who criticized the contents and techniques of their own manuscripts from rhymes to essays with examples of almost every type between the two. In addition to bimonthly meeting of the separate groups, under the officers elected for the half year, were joint meetings.

Play going was an outlet for the members time and spare change. This program prepared members for literary careers, and for life in a lettered world.

Lunchroom Staff

At 11:15 A.M., a hunger-crazed mob rushed into the lunchroom to the strains of A Cup of Coffee, a Sandwich, and You. The Piper followed with a desire for a cup of coffee, a sandwich, and seeing you, B. H. S. students, in the process of storing energy. Lunch in hand, he sat down in the smoothly-run lunchroom, where 2000 students daily partook of innumerable hot dishes, sandwiches, desserts, and pints of milk, or rather half-pints. Mrs. Smith supervised the student staff of sixteen each day, who helped serve food, earning their lunches and learning to handle large quantities of food. The Piper remarked, "The cuisine in this lunchroom would easily satisfy a gourmet. I might even go as far as to say it tastes good."

Mathematics Society

The Pied Piper leisurely strolled into a meeting of the Mathematics Society, singing Onesie, Twosie, I Love Yousie; for, though no one would suspect it, he was mathematically inclined and was exhibiting his love for figures. He was promptly shushed by fifty students, who were eagerly listening to Professor Syer, of Boston University, speaking to the society on "Mathematics Clubs in Secondary Schools." The Piper asked the boy in the seat beside him about the society.

"The society is divided into interest groups, which meet once a week, while the club as a whole meets monthly, attempting to stimulate interest in mathematics and to aid in its instruction."

Glancing again at the listeners, the Piper thought how well the purpose was being fulfilled.

PERRY COMO

Do you enjoy listening to music varying from Beethoven to Gershwin? The Pied Piper does too, so he decided to visit a monthly meeting of the Music Society, under the direction of Mr. Joslin. For this meeting, the society had engaged a guest speaker; and, as usual when outside speakers are presented, the meeting was open to all. Recordings selected from the school's library of records were played in conjunction with the speech.

The Piper was pleased to discover, from the announcements made by Joy Spiegel, that a show to exhibit the numerous and near-professional talents of Music Society members was planned.

After a very pleasant afternoon, the Pied Piper left the meeting with a feeling of achievement; for, accomplished musician though he was, he learned much from listening to the music of others, and discussing it with people of similar interests.

Orchestra

While at Brookline High School, the Piper attended Dramatic Society productions, Graduation, and heard the American Education Programs in the fall.

At the Jay Murray Kay Prize Speaking Contest in May, he was acutely aware of the presence of Lucille Gould, Sylvia Kaye, Ira Nottonson, and Robert Palmer, finalists in the Declamation Section; Ruthlin Glover, Zola Perkis, Lois Weinstein, and Esor Winer, Original finalists; and Burton Bartzoff, Judith Seltzer, Richard Steinberg, and Robert Ullian, Extemporaneous finalists. However, as at other functions, he was not conscious of the presence of the Orchestra, so well did its performance blend with the unified whole. The Orchestra did step into the spotlight at the Southeastern Massachusetts Regional Festival in Attleboro, where it distinguished itself in its audition before the judges.

The Piper was singing, We could Make Such Beautiful Music Together, as he opened the door. Joy Spiegel, rising from the piano, welcomed him to the Orpheus Ensemble. The Piper whispered in her ear.

"Alright. Let me introduce Boris Novack, one of the violinists."

The Piper then met David Fagell, another violinist, and Carol Grund, the cellist. At Joy's suggestion, he was introduced to Dick Raphael and Sherman Friedland, clarinettists, and Dick Greenfield, who played the French horn. Mat Israel explained that Mr. Joslin invited exceptional music students to join the ensemble to further their work, and that they planned to play at a South Eastern Massachusetts Music Festival. Then came the Piper's big moment, a chance to play in the ensemble. Truly beautiful music issued forth.

Pep Club

"We've got the coach, team, pep, steam," cheered the rooting section.

Few of those cheering realized how much of this pep they owed to the Pep Club members, whose vivacity and efforts in selling red and blue beanies, banners and decals, in organizing rallies, and in chartering buses for out-of-town games had inspired school spirit regardless of scores or weather. The two hundred fifty members of the Pep Club organized the Faculty-Varsity basketball game and sponsored the annual Sports Dance.

When the Pied Piper passed the lunchroom after school, he found Pep Club members engaged in selling plastic book covers, a new activity for the club.

"For one dime you can buy a washable plastic bookcover, and also get your latest crush's photo, if that crush happens to be Tom Berry, captain of track; Charlie Egan, swimming; Russ Fogarty, football; Larry Lewis, tennis; George McGoldrick, baseball; Leo Mullins, golf; Al Schultz, basketball; and John Sheehan, football. This is not all that you get in these amazing bookcovers. There's even space for doodling!"

"Now," said the Pied Piper, when he discovered the remarkable work that the Pep Club had done, "let's give a cheer for the Pep Club. Are you ready? Are you set? Let's go! B. H. S."

Various aspects of our atomic age were subjects for extensive discussion at joint meetings of the Physics and Chemistry Clubs. Aiding the members in achieving understanding of this and other subjects related to physics were good scientific films viewed by Physics Club members in their efforts to combine study and entertainment in gaining basic knowledge essential to their future and work. The Science Fair was one activity in which Physics Club members participated. Those who did not themselves participate encouraged and helped those who did.

The Piper joined the Physics Club when, with the Chem Club, it visited the new telephone building to see the mechanisms which made possible all Greater Boston calls. Then, the Piper was invited to visit the Boston Museum of Science with them.

Radio Club

"I have a suggestion", interrupted the Piper, as Radio Club members discussed plans for their next broadcast, one of several produced by the Radio Club members over stations WHDH, WCOP, WVOM and WMEX. "I can see it now. The red light flashes, 'On the air'; the announcer begins, 'the Brookline High School Radio Club presents the Pied Piper in The Book Of The Year—Murivian 1950'."

Because of the disapproval of the members, whose attempts at bettering their understanding of the radio took the form of hearing guest speakers, holding discussions, and presenting actual broadcasts, this broadcast never materialized. However, the members did participate in the WCOP monthly talent show, a disk jockey contest, and a series for American Education Week. America listened when B.H.S. was on the air.

Red Cross

Inquisitive about the little red and white boxes filled with toothpaste, soap, pencils, and toys, the Pied Piper queried Mr. Edmunds as to their purpose.

"We, the Junior Red Cross of B.H.S., are conducting a drive to send needed articles overseas to children in devastated countries, where the boxes serve as good will ambassadors from the youth of America to the youth of Europe.

"We plan to hold a March drive for cash to be used to help the needy at home.

"The seventy members who compose the B.H.S. Junior Red Cross encourage others to contribute to the National Children's Fund also."

"Excuse me, please! I'm going to buy a toy for a tot."

Sagamore

How Soon seemed an apt selection for the Sagamore staff, for when the Piper visited, everyone was meeting a deadline.

Although putting out thirteen usual issues was a fulltime job, this year's staff added many new features. More pictures were used to show various phases of student life as well as progress on the new wing. The Sagamore celebrated Class Day with its first eight-page issue, Thanksgiving with a football booklet, Christmas with two pages in green ink and editorials by eminent citizens of various faiths, and February vacation with a rotogravure section.

The Sagamore, in order to become a true organ of student expression, included material by students not on the staff. New columns and features as well as old made the paper worthy of another song, Good, Good, Good.

Ski Club

This past year, while the class of '50 wistfully hoped for a comparatively mild winter, the sixty-three Ski members crowded their prayers with pleas for snow. These hardy sixty-three, from snow bunnies (novices) to kanonens (experts), felt that there should be a club to bring together skiers with all degrees of skill to help improve their techniques and to provide competition.

The lack of snow marred slightly their plans, but the ski movies which were often of necessity, substituted for skiing, had much instructive value. An ambitious organization, they held practice at the Commonwealth Country Club, weather and the good Lord permitting. As early as September, they imagined themselves sliding down Mount Sunapee on their . . . skis.

Social Customs Club

Suddenly the quiet serenity of the afternoon was pierced by laughter; the Pied Piper halted to listen. A girl approached to ask if he would like to observe the Social Customs Club meeting. His curiosity made him agree; and he entered the room, where fifty girls were gathered, listening to Clare Varnum's announcements. "This year we plan to continue our custom of having the Halloween, Christmas, and Valentine parties, and showing a full length movie. In addition, requests for members to serve as ushers for social affairs and concerts have been made. "You see," said Clare to the Piper, "the purpose of the Club is to help each girl develop her personality, so that she can get along with the social life of the school." The Piper rose, thanked the girls, and left playing Tea for Two.

Spanish Club

Since he planned to continue his journey south, the Pied Piper decided that he had better attend a Spanish Club meeting to pick up pointers on the language. He greeted those present with "Buenos dios!" The members were first amazed, then amused. He, although angered by their laughter, let them persuade him to stay until the cast was ready to present the scheduled playlet, and then until the end of the playlet, and then until the end of the meeting.

Throughout the festivities of the meeting, the Piper became increasingly aware of how songs, games, and educational and social activities fostered the members interest in this language, which, in a world such as ours today, is growing and becoming one of the most important of the romance languages. The Piper left muttering, "Buenos días!"

Stage and Electrical Staff

Entering the auditorium during a rehearsal of I Remember Mama, the Pied Piper was confronted with a great deal of commotion. This uproar, of course, was not made by the actors, but by the members of the Stage and Electrical Staff, setting up the stage. Stage props and scenery were being brought from all corners and were being put in their places. A fuse blew; Burt Bartzoff came to the rescue.

"Burt, why so pale? Oh, you got a shock. Leave the lights alone and test the curtain pulleys. You can't get electrocuted from testing pulleys." Amid this confusion, the actors attempted to act. The monotone of the hammer answered the passionate plea of Dagmar. At a play rehearsal, B. H. S. isn't a far cry from Grand Central Station.

Afghanistan, Timbuctoo, Lower Slobbovia. . . . Far Away Places with Strange Sounding Names. Stamp Club members are the proud possessors of stamps from such places. For the purpose of stamp-ers is improving collections with a supply of valuable stamps from distant and unusual places. The Pied Piper, an eager philatelist, spent hours with them, comparing, buying, and selling stamps. The exhibition during the winter produced a greeneyed look in the Piper, who admired the collections which included many rare stamps. Later during an auction held by the collectors, he was able to obtain one stamp he particularly fancied. At the last meeting, the Pied Piper discussed the finer points of philately and promised each member, a letter with a Hamlin stamp on it.

Student Forum

Not only during the homeroom periods but also on several afternoons the Forum brought the high school distinguished speakers, presented interesting movies, and held debates, endeavoring to acquaint us with current events and world affairs. Each program included discussion and question periods. At an assembly for Freshman, the Forum introduced them to the extra-curricular activities available at B.H.S. to enable more intelligent planning of high school careers.

At an assembly on International Control of Atomic Energy, Louis Osborne of M.I.T. and Mark Shaw, noted pacifist, offered alternative solutions. When polled, 325 students favored over-all understanding with Russia; 223, holding out for a minimum international control and inspection system.

STUDENT HANDBOOK 1950

Student Handbook

A freshman was looking frantically about, scratching his perplexed head. "Alas," thought the Piper, "a pitiful figure; but whom do I see coming? Will he help the freshman? Why can it be? An upper-classman with a Handbook in his hand!"

"Would you like to buy a Student Handbook? I think you'd find the Freshman Guide very helpful!"

"Oh, thank you! A Handbook is just the thing I need. It must have taken a great deal of work to produce a handbook like this that serves the whole school."

"Well," said the Handbook salesman, "the selection of the editor, the choosing of the staff, the assigning of material, the rushing to meet deadlines add up to the finished Handbook. This little gem of accumulated knowledge has become a necessity, with its club reviews and its sports news. The Handbook contains all the answers to questions asked by students. 'What are the words to the Alma Mater?' 'What does a B represent?' Everyone can learn from the Handbook.

"This year a section was added for all students planning to go either to work or to school after high school. This part gave information concerning applications, interviews, tests, and recommendations.

"Here's a picture of a steamshovel beginning the North Wing. Looks different now, doesn't it?

"I'd like to tell you more, but you have a Handbook now. I have to rescue a senior from his dilemma over the college boards."

Vocal Ensemble

While walking through the corridors one Wednesday at 2:35 p.m., the Pied Piper heard some beautiful singing. Twenty-four selected girls were raising their voices in song. Every Wednesday from 2:30 to 3:00 p.m.. under the direction of Mrs. Jarrett, this organization, part of the Choral Society, gave those students with superior voices, a chance to sing.

Their superb performance at the Christmas Assembly was another an auditorium during the year for the appreciation of the students of Brookline High School.

Their superb performance at the Christmas Assembly was another outstanding example of their fine quality.

To an organization with such high aims and great achievements, the Pied Piper gave much praise.

B-R-O-O-K-L-I-N-E Yay, Brookline! The Piper noticed, as he walked through the quadrangle, girls dressed in red and blue, practicing for a rally. These peppy girls were present at all sports events, leading their spirit to the occasion. They led songs and cheers and promoted group feeling throughout the crowd. The uniforms consisted of a blue skirt and red sweater, each with a letter.

Old English B

Having overheard an athletic-looking girl remark, "I need only fifty points more to have my Old English 'B'!", the Piper queried, "Is a 'B' in English based on points?"

"No, a red and blue felt letter signifies that a girl has earned five-hundred points for athletic interest and achievement. A participant in a sport, on a varsity team, or on a winning squad in gym receives points, as does a girl with perfect attendance in gym, or one who acts as locker marshal. The coveted 'B' is an inducement and a reward for taking part in sports, which play an important part in school life by providing healthful relaxation and exercise."

Baseball

From the four hundred fifty prospective candidates, who attended an assembly featuring National League pictures, were picked this year's teams.

Captain Midge Chalmers was the greatest Varsity outfield standout because of his brilliant hitting and miraculous fielding. Behind the plate, shone catcher Tom Day, who played varsity ball since his sophomore year. Ed Yarckin guarded third base; "Porkey" Farley, second; and Jim Kilgallon and Jim Archibald, alternately first. On the mound, Ronnie Lee, Bill Hickey, Jim Mulloy, Bob Nelson, and Al Schultz officiated; while Larry Wilson, and Dick Mc Connell shortstopped. A remarkable speedy infield included George Mc Goldrick and Larry Wilson.

Basketball

The 1949-50 Grinnell men kept the pace of top notch Varsity basketball. Captain Red Schultz led the team onward with his ability to score. He, Charlie Smyth, and newcomer Bobby Allard garnered most of the Brookline tallies, but they alone were not responsible for the team's high position in the suburban conference; for Joe May and Ed Yarchin as well as the rest of the team aided the Brookline cause considerably. Mr. Grinnell constantly tutored the boys, giving them every possible pointer, an invaluable factor in the team's success. Faults were few; baskets, many.

Al Schultz's last-second baskets proved to be a great asset to the Varsity together with center Charlie Smyth's active ball-retrieving. Mike Dukakis, Jim Palais, Bob Wool, Marty Leppo, Leo Fitzgerald and Ronnie Kelm widely used man-to-man defense. With most of the team returning next year, Brookline High should equal this year's enviable record.

Under the mentor, Ted Mc Intyre, J. V. hoopsters gained experience which will be used advantageously when these boys join the Varsity. Their lack of height was balanced by their aggressiveness and spirit. Notable among the players were Lou Goldenberg, Buzzie Wiseman, Werner Gossels, Larry Halpern and Jimmy Hyde.

This, the second year of Freshman basketball at Brookline High School, was a good season led by forwards Frank Salmaine and Leo Falamore, whose height was a great help. Future teams will no doubt draw heavily from these Frosh.

Football

Changing from class "B" to class "A" proved an almost insurmountable obstacle to the Varsity, but the Newton Game attoned for all losses. Popell, the team's pass receiver, and Pierce, voted "all schoolboy lineman" for his tackle and block prowess, were the bulwark of the line, while in the backfield captains Sheehan and Fogarty were the shining light, supplemented by Wilson's ability to tackle and run. McGoldrick was the high scorer of the year.

The J. V. beat Waltham and Melrose, two of the states strongest squads. Prominent players were Donovan, Michelini, Hourihan, Koplow, Roycroft, and backs Edgar, Gussak, and Noonan.

This year's Freshman football squad showed promise for the coming teams when they outscored their position 77-13, losing only once. On the defense Young, Orff, and Weissman were the forward-wall standouts. The backfield was composed of Conway, Ball, and Salamaine, whose passes to Orff played an important part in many games.

Golf

From the first tee-off, until the ball fell into the cup on the 18th green, the Brookline High golf team, captained by Massachusetts Caddy Champion Leo Mullin, has continually ranked high among the New England schools. Losing only one veteran, this year's team, with its four returning lettermen, is the finest in recent years of interscholastic golf competition. Under the tutelage of Coach Woodlock, practice commenced in the middle of April. Heading the squad along with Captain Mullin are lettermen Ben Murphy, who continually shoots in the low seventies, Ed Keaney, a four-year veteran, and Paul Taylor, a capable junior.

Hockey

Hockey sticks clattered against the rink; the red light flashed on; a great roar arose from the crowd. Brookline High School's hockey team had scored again.

Under the watchful eye of Coach Clem McCann, the hockey team, led by Eastern Massachusetts League All-Star Defenseman, Tom Hines, skated into third place, a few points behind champion Dedham.

Hines and John O'Brien, both on the Esmass squad, gave well-rounded performances. Jack Sheehan did some fancy network, while sophomore Jim Donovan and Ed Keany ranked high in both the local scoring parade and the league-scoring tabulations.

In the season circuit, Brookline outscored Malden, Hudson and Lexington; tied Somerville and second-place Natick; and lost to Wakefield and Dedham.

With the majority of this year's team returning, next year should prove to be an extremely successful one, even excelling this past one.

Swimming

Under the expert training of Mr. Coutts, the team fared well and upheld Brookline's high reputation in every meet of the season.

With an exceptional turnout for the initial practices, Coach Coutts began to mold his team. Captain Charlie Egan was the outstanding 100-yard breaststroker; speedy Jack Edwards led the pace in the fifty-yard free-style; Paul Friedman and Cal Williams were exceptional in the 200 and Dick Hennessey's height accounted for his amazing speed in the hundred-fifty-yard medley. Bob Parker, George Lampke and Dave Chauncy contributed greatly to the diving, hundred-yard backstroke, and fifty-yard free-style, respectively. Several new additions, juniors Dave Gussack and Barry Curhan; sophomores Alex Scourtis and Bob Firth; and freshman Charlie Dufton helped to bring the team success. With most of these men returning next year, Coach Coutts expects a successful season.

Boy's Tennis

As the Pied Piper waited for Captain Larry Lewis to jump over the net, he thought what a romantic game tennis was; or rather it was a romantic game when the Piper played—the scores were all love.

Under the fine coaching of Mr. Wells, the successful candidates in last fall's tournament at Dean Road combined to form the Varsity and Junior Varsity teams. Brookline High School, he was told, has continued to have a fine team represented at the State and New England Championships.

Cross-Country Track

"Puff . . . puff, whew!" What were these sounds? Another cross-country man rounding the daily five-and-one-half mile course. You say that's rather long? Ordinarily, yes; but not for these stalwart harriers. The team learned many extras about the sport from Coach Tracy, the first track coach in B. H. S. history to actually run with the team.

The team met and lost to Quincy, Malden Catholic, North Quincy and Milton, but each loss was by a scanty margin.

The co-captains, Burt Bartzoff and Henri Lion led the pace in each meet. Though Burt, a senior, will not be returning, Henri will be back next year and with other juniors Dukakis, Kopelman and Wiseman, who will comprise the nucleus of the varsity team.

Winter and Spring Track

Paced by Captain Tom Berry, who captured the 1,000 yard run in all of the dual meets, the Brookline High track team completed a fairly successful year. Coach Richard Tracy, in his first year at the helm of the squad, produced fine representation in the State Meet as Stan Steinberg, standout 45 yard dash man, Barry Brooks, excellent high jumper, and Howard Forman, capable high hurdler, competed in the finals. Other stalwarts making the backbone of the team were Henri Lion, Leo Mullin and Edgar Robinson. Next years prospects appear bright as many returning lettermen will add strength to a squad of novices.

Girls' Archery

As the Pied Piper entered the gym with an arrow stuck in his hat, a young lady approached him eagerly.

"Oh! Here's that arrow! I thought I'd lost it when it flew into the hall.

"Thanks for finding it.

"All fifty of us are trying to learn to handle a bow and arrow correctly and to improve our present skill. We keep a record of our scores at the weekly meetings in order to see our advancement. The ultimate goal of all is to be able to hit that red bull's eye, but, as you see, we don't all achieve that."

THE RESULTS OF CAREFUL AIMING

Girls' Basketball

The Pied Piper, watching a lively basketball game, suggested Embraceable You as a theme song, because, "Each side wishes that the basket would embrace the ball."

Mrs. Brusko thought his remark too corny to answer. She tried to change the subject, explaining that the house teams competed, Packard House winning the championship, and from the teams was picked the Varsity, captained by Joan May. The phys. ed. department facilitated for each girl the development of interest and skill in basketball.

ROW 3: Johnson, Osenton, Arnold, Lidstone, Dunlevy, Patterson, Josephs, Waters, Krapt.

Girls' Golf

What does one do when, walking in the woods, he is hit on the head with a golf ball? Like most people, the Pied Piper said, "Ouch!" However, he then retrieved the ball and crossed the green to return it chivalrously to the miss who missed when driving it. A dozen girls were practicing stance and swing under the gaze of a professional-looking instructor. A dozen more girls were perfecting their putting. Borrowing a club, he hit the ball which he had found, or which, rather, had found the Piper, and made a hole-in-one.

Field Hockey

There was a succession of short passes; a stick was extended quickly; and the Piper, tripping over the stick, sprawled on the Dean Road Playground; admitting defeat to the forty-five advanced players, he joined the thirty-five beginners, but faired no better.

"You not only play well despite the scores, but also exhibit excellent sportsmanship," he said.

Riding

With a boost from Mr. Wright of Wright Stables, the Piper mounted and rode into the warm fall day with the B. H. S. equestriennes. Mr. Wright, who expertly instructed advanced and beginners groups in horsemanship, led them into the winding paths of Franklin Park, there, on the trails covered with autumn leaves the fears of the beginners were quelled and the joys of the advanced students were increased.

Their last lesson over, the girls promised to return in the spring, as the Piper pondered the possibilities of piping astride.

Girls' Swimming

Every Wednesday afternoon, the female B.H.S. aquatic experts dived in to practice their strokes. From one hundred girls who went out for this popular sport, a varsity team of twenty-four powerful swimmers was chosen to compete in meets with other schools. However, girls who didn't make the varsity had a lot of fun improving their strokes in the cool, refreshing waters of the B.H.S. pool. (The Piper learned all this second hand; for the girls, when practicing, hung out the sign, "No admittance! MEN take notice!").

ROW 2: A. Cohen, Kaplan, Haffer, Adelson, Salett.

Girls' Tennis

Exploring our educational system, the Pied Piper discovered the art of tennis being practiced by active girls who were trying to perfect their skills in a game possessing great carry-over value in later life. Challenged to a set, the Piper played the score Love, Love, Love, reaffirming the reputation of the B. H. S. varsity team. Besides the varsity which played on the honor system at courts throughout Brookline, there were intermediate and beginner sessions at Dean Road and in the gym.

Lincoln House

The four hundred seventy wide-awake Freshmen made the Pied Piper stop piping and take notice of their doings.

Under Mr. Wall, Housemaster, and Miss Shaw, his assistant, the sixteen first-year homerooms have, through their weekly assemblies, acquainted themselves with the high school and the high school with them and with their talents.

Coach Jorden and the Frosh football team turned in a great season, rolling up a chain of victories. Coach Roderick and the Frosh basketball team won wide acclaim, as did the track and baseball teams, studded with the future greats. The girls too smashed sports records.

The Spring Dance at Driscoll School and the officers and school council members were among the reasons why Lincoln House shines in many ways.

If one judges from the first year, Lincoln House has tremendous potentialities. The Piper, happy to find a house full of such vigor and promise, went on his way a bit happier.

ROBERTS HOUSE

Weiner, Morrison, Gross, Krapft, Mrs. Ginty, Mr. Meyers, Cohen, Halpern.

Roberts House

During their first year, Roberts House members Eleanor Ross and Harold Coughlin won a division of Prize Speaking and the Art Club Contest, respectively. As a Freshman, Soph Jim Donovan made the hockey team and, this year, second string of the All-Stars. Charlie Smyth and Bob Allard started on the basketball, while Hal Bowers starred in the Newton football game. Pat Cotter, V. P. of the Girls' League, Allan Pons, treasurer of the Debating Society, and Dave Evans, stage manager, are Roberts Housers. Outside school, Ruth Young sang and George Steinberg showed his snakes on T. V.

The Sophs seemed to enjoy school, too, for they maintained the highest attendance record, possibly because of the influence of their politicians.

Incidentally, Roberts House has the largest representation in the band of any house.

Yes, the Sophs generally rate the adjectives biggest, most, best; it is expected that as upper classmen they will continue to lead the way.

Shailer House

The Shailer House Banking Committee, led by Mike Dukakis, formed to help the Juniors maintain their high banking record. Their efforts were climaxed by a drive for 100% participation, January 31, 1950, achieving 99.1%!

These peppy Juniors, under the direction of Mr. Mather and Miss Murdock, and the leadership of Bob Wool, Mike Dukakis, Sally Waters and Phyllis Davis, tripped the light fantastic at the November Junior Social, under the chairmanship of John Williams, and at the Junior Prom in May.

Already established as thespians of note, they broke another precedent by their presentation of A Christmas Carol at the Christmas Assembly. With Mr. Mather's adaptation, and under the direction of Miss Doe, the play was a smashing success. Phil Robinson as Scrooge and Ira Nottonson as Marley's ghost were widely acclaimed.

As the leaders of Shailer House became the leaders of Brookline High School, we knew the school was in good hands.

To The Class of 1950

A Class of singular attainments in social activities and scholastic standing, you have contributed fully to the sports and the arts, the pleasures and the duties of our rich school life. You leave a satisfying record to inspire your successors, you take with you a reputation that will help you immeasureably in successful living and acquiring distinction as individuals.

You have earned the respect of the faculty and the splendid help of other classes. I recall with admiration and affection the many steps you have taken in reaching your goal. It is my great hope and expectation that your successes will continue, that, in your further education, your life's work, and your homes, you—and your Alma Mater—will be proud of your achievements.

N. Wendell Weeks

To The Graduates of 1950

During the two years as your Assistant Housemaster, I have been sincerely grateful for the privilege of knowing you.

You have been a remarkable class in meeting your obligations. Your high scholastic achievement and your very fine attitude prove your quality.

Now, you are being graduated to make your place in the world, where new situations will have to be met and obstacles will have to be overcome. They will require your best efforts.

The school has tried to give you breadth of vision to make you more tolerant of those with whom you do not always agree and to enable you to look with sympathy and understanding on those less fortunate than yourselves.

I hope that real success will come to you in your new adventure. Whatever it may be, it will require a strict adherence to high ideals. My best wishes will constantly go with you.
